

A

- 1 That's the hospital the twins were born in.
 - 2 Mr Albert Smith, who is thirty-nine, is the manager of my local bank.
 - 3 I bought a load of apples, three quarters of which were bad. *
 - 4 The tree whose branches blew off last week is going to be cut down.
 - 5 That's the bank he borrowed some money from.
 - 6 The girl he met last year is going to become his wife.
 - 7 She left her address, which is how we contacted her.
 - 8 The pear that/which fell off the tree hit his head.
 - 9 Who is the girl whose brother has just got married?
 - 10 There were fifty policemen, none of whom was armed. *
 - 11 I can't stand the comments he makes.
 - 12 Thousands of people had come to Dallas to see the President, none of whom knew what was about to happen. *
 - 13 The man who was by the door beckoned me over.
 - 14 Bill Johnson, to whom I once lent £50, has now become a millionaire.
(Bill Johnson, who I once lent £50 to, has now become a millionaire.)
 - 15 The French cuisine, about which I spoke last time, is known world-wide.
(The French cuisine, which I spoke last about time, is known world-wide.)
 - 16 Dickens, whose first book was called Sketches by Boz, was a nineteenth century novelist.
-

* We did not talk about the grammar required in these sentences. They won't be part of your test.

B

- 1 People whose names begin with A always get taken first, which is most unfair.
 - 2 You needn't think you were unobserved! I saw what you did!
 - 3 I'm not quite sure that what you say is true.
 - 4 She expects me to clean the whole house in half an hour, which is impossible.
 - 5 He played the violin all night, which annoyed his neighbours.
 - 6 I didn't buy anything because I didn't see what I wanted.
-